CrackaJack Strikes Two Fridays in a Row

Charles Partridge of New Haven, Indiana, won the $1,000 CrackaJack prize on Friday, August 8.

His win followed on the heels of the previous Friday's award of the CrackaJack to Amber Stamper of Williamsburg, Virginia and Carolyn Yarbrough of Friendsville, Tennessee, who split the prize.

Charles is the sixth CrackaJack winner since AdJack went live in January, 2008. He is an experienced "sweeper" who also won $15,000 in the Indiana lottery in 1999, two weeks before Christmas. "My luck seems to run in ten year spurts," he says.

Even though he has some impressive wins to his credit, he says he doesn't like to get involved in many sweepstakes sites. "I don't like to invest that much time in it, but I found the AdJack site interesting. If commercials are entertaining, I like watching them. I like the Bud commercials, and I'm a big fan of the sports commercials. There are some real smart ones for sports. And I am particularly fond of the Wii vs the Playstation commercial. I like that one. It stands out. Common commercials I don't care to watch."

Charles says he will use his prize money to fund his move from his native Indiana to Texas or Arizona, where oil drilling is ramping up. He has worked construction for most of his adult life, in the Texas oilfields and in steel building construction in Indiana. "I'm looking forward to milder winters," he says.
